06/28/13 / Author: Samantha Baker

For the first time, Converse has collaborated with legendary Los Angeles graffiti artist Chaz Bojorquez on a new pair of chucks. The Converse x Chaz Chuck Taylor All Star comes in midnight black with Bojorquez's recognizable skull tag, aptly named "Señor Suerte," in white on the tongue. The interior is lined with Bojorquez's writing and the insole features a classic black-and-white image of him tagging. To make the sneaker even more unique, it comes with hexagonal "nut-and-bolt" eyelets and a screen-print of the artist's signature in a pop of white. Unlike most chucks, these original pair of kicks will not be available everywhere. Limited to the Converse San Francisco store, Footpatrol in London, and Juice in Hong Kong and Shanghai, the Converse x Chaz Chuck Taylor All Star will be for sale beginning June 28th. Grab a pair while they're hot because these sneakers are going to go fast.
