

Google Glass: Innovation At Its Best

06/14/13 / Author: Samantha Baker

Between iOS and Android, there seems to be no other room in the market for anything new. Well, in comes Google Glass, ready to play with the big kids and prove them wrong. These minimalistic frames hold a tiny piece of glass in front of your eye, but there is much more to them than it seems. These simple frames have more functions than you could ever imagine, from showing the time to taking a picture when you say “Take a picture,” Google Glass could be the next must-have tech item. The only real concern when it comes to Google Glass is not if the technology will be up to par with iOS and Android, but if it is stylish enough. Many may feel odd wearing this futuristic tech tool, it isn’t exactly discrete. Either way, Google Glass is gearing up to hit consumers in the near future, but until then, check out its site for more information and demonstrations.